Hello Chris,

Spoke to Kirk

He said that he was unaware of the breach and has no idea of why there would be communication with the previous staff as they were terminated. His partner Graham had a heart attack and is in hospital and he wonders whether it was coming from Graham. But he said that she is not working for them. He was very cooperative and did not have a combative discussion and saw no reason for us not to continue supplying staff.

He also said that he had terminated because her availability was poor along with her internet connection with the work (rental properties) he needs to have a person who has solid connection and is able to turn up for work.

He said that he had communicated with the team to find a replacement, He communicated with the team that the initially presented candidates were not up to scratch and nothing has transpired since. Is this another case of forgotten about clients?

I am more than convinced now that we need to have a real time report panel that lists all open placement requirements. With this report panel, that can be viewed by anyone who needs to, we can see what state our placement activity is at and there is no way that we can have jobs become forgotten because management can look and question.

He also said that the VoIP solutions recommended were all poor.

I will send js form link to re initiate search for staff and will help him with the voip.

Cheers, Walter

Hi Walter,

Since Kirk is your client may I ask to follow up on this please by June 8.

We will be away by then and wont be able to check on this. You can get accounts to generate an invoice if not resolved by then.

If you need more info on the evidence please contact Vernie CSRO an quote case # 31.

Thanks.
